When the United Scates Congress meets next week it ought not to take President Harring many hours and the House and Senate many days, to put an end to this mockery and stultification of cold truth and hard tact, with a simple resolution dectaring what is not a theory but an actuality -the actuality that there is peace between the United States and Ger-

Cuban Sugar Price Fixing.

These are unusual times and they produce unusual methods of procedure, particularly in many instance arising daily in the business world Nobody with any common sense stands on ceremony if the elimination of it will afford a short cut to economic stability. That is to say, nobody does if somebody else doesn't interfere.

The pot which is boiling with the unceremonious doings of the Cuban Sugar Financial Commission in fixing the price and selling conditions of raw sugar from Cuba might go on bubbling forever without disturbing the business world, intent on reconstruction, provided it did not boil ever and attract attention to itself.

But this is just what has happened in the case of the Cuban Sugar Financlal Commission. A Railroad Man Who Knows.

A section foreman on a raffroad in Virginia has written as follows to the Rosnoke Times:

"I am a union man a good standing, and common sense teaches me if the railroads cut wages it will be for the interest of the majority of the working people. I have ten section men and only working three or four of them; the other six haven't anything to do. If the railroad companies cut wages they will work every man, and I do k ve to see my fellow man and his little children have just as much of this world's goods as I have, and I am willing for my wages to be cut if it will help some one else that neces help.

"I don't think it is right for a few men to lap up everything and the rest to go hungry, and I don't think it is right for my union to try and hold up wages just to accommodate a few people. Cut wages and let everybody work. This will be acceptable and approved by dop.

EVENTS TO-DAY.

And little brooks laugh low and silverly.

When from the grass mild violet eyes peer through
And tulips lift their burnished chalices—
When spring is spring, I shall not hear and see.

Though I shall sleep, yet good it is to know

To myriad living souis the spring will come
With its divine, revivifying breath:
That year on year will crowding blossoms blow—
